two vertical-lr cells with very different content lengths, each in their own column of the same row short column	long column

short	a much longer stretch of vertical text content	that needs considerably more columns than its neighbor